North Coast Music Festival

West Loop

It's not hard to get lost in the comings and goings of local music fests projecting fest-specific mixes on the street, by the lake and in various large parks. But judging by its pre-sale success, North Coast Music Festival, debuting in Union Park (1501 W. Randolph St.) this weekend, isn't one that's falling off people's radars. Billed appropriately enough as "summer's last stand," this three-day event stars heavy hitters Moby (9 p.m. Saturday), Lupe Fiasco (7:30 p.m. Sunday) and Nas with Damien "Jr. Gong" Marley (8:30 p.m. Sunday), as well as 40 local up-and-comers and need-to-know artists such as Grace Potter and the Nocturnals (right) on four stages. North Coast also comes with an impressive array of after-parties all weekend. Oh, and it ends Sunday, so you'll have all of Monday to recover before heading back to work. $50 per day at the gate.

When: Noon-10 p.m. Saturday-Sunday

FETE

African Fest, Taste of Polonia

Woodlawn, Portage Park

Two long-running fests featuring mounds of amazing food and music to rock your long weekend are back. How will you choose? If you can't try both, here's the rundown of each:

»» African Festival of the Arts

Where: Washington Park, 5100 S.

Cottage Grove Ave. 773-955-2787

Info: $15; 10 a.m.-10 p.m.

Saturday-Monday

The draw: Music and shopping.

The 21st annual fest not only comes packed with 300 international vendors, it's got a main stage stocked with danceable acts from Grammy-winning Angelique Kidjo (8:30 p.m. Saturday) to "Tell Me Something Good" signer Chaka Khan (8:15 p.m. Monday).

»» Taste of Polonia

Where: Copernicus Cultural Center, 5216 W. Lawrence Ave.

Info: $6-$7; noon-11 p.m. Saturday-Sunday; noon-10 p.m. Monday

The draw: Pierogi, of course! Per the name, the 31st annual fest serves up the Polish dumpling in dozens of flavors from local vendors including iconic Kasia's Deli. On the side you'll find Polish sausage, sauerkraut and kabobs, plus traditional fest food and beer. Work it all off dancing to polka tunes on five stages.

DRESS

In your best (worst) bridesmaid gown

Lincoln Park

Remember when you stuffed that fluffy, tea-length, teal, (expensive) bridesmaid dress in your closet after your sister's wedding? You didn't expect to see it again—no matter how many people said shortening the hem would make it wearable in the real world. Well, here's your chance to unbury the old girl and earn some cash. The first 25 dress-clad gals through the door at Faith & Whiskey (1365 W. Fullerton Ave. 773-248-9119) get a $40 boutique gift card, and whoever makes the best bridesmaid speech wins $100. That's not to mention wedding-themed party favors, disposable cameras and $1 glasses of sparkling wine. No cover.

When: 5 p.m. Sunday

SKIP WORK

Labor Day bashes

Loop, Uptown, River North

Happy Labor Day weekend; you deserve a day off—or at least some no-work relaxation. Whether you want to dance till you drop, sip cocktails and watch TV, or just relax over a nice extended dinner, here's how to celebrate:

»» Dance at Stay Smooth XIV: Nowhere Left to Rum (Columbia Yacht Club, 111 N. Lake Shore Drive. 773-525-2501). Your ticket includes a hosted bar from 7-10 p.m., DJ sets from Bald E. and STV SLV, and a live performance from Quadraphonica. $40-$50.

When: 7 p.m. Saturday

»» Rock your best '60s garb and watch "Mad Men" over $1 deviled eggs and $6 old fashioned prepared tableside at Fat Cat (4840 N. Broadway. 773-506-3100). Event continues through the season.

When: 9 p.m. Sunday

»» Score a three-course dinner for two for $20 at La Madia (59 W. Grand Ave. 312-329-0400). The meal includes salad, pizza and a cookie dessert. Add two glasses of select wine for $10 more.

When: 9 p.m.-midnight Monday

INTERACT

Chicago Fringe Festival

Pilsen

Welcome to the fringe, Chicago theater scene. The inaugural five-day fest culminates this weekend with more than 40 performances from indie artists and experimental ensembles at Pilsen art galleries, bars and theaters. You can't go wrong with pretty much anything you see, so head to the Fringe Central courtyard (1714 S. Racine Ave.), grab a schedule and review your options over a drink and DJ tunes. Celebrate the fest at Honky Tonk Barbeque (1213 W. 18th St. 312-226-7427) during an official after party starting 10 p.m. Sunday with tunes till the wee hours. $10 suggested donation per show plus $5 CFF button (one-time purchase); chicagofringe.org

The Tigris River in Baghdad. The U.S. military completed a troop drawdown in Iraq this week. REUTERS

Drawdown milestone

Tuesday marked the official end to the U.S. combat mission in Iraq, but about 50,000 American troops remain to train Iraqi police and troops as the country takes over its own security. What does it all mean? Here are a few numbers, as reported by the L.A. Times and Reuters, to help explain the situation in Iraq.

7.5 years

The length of the U.S. combat presence in Iraq.

4,416

The number of U.S. soldiers killed in Iraq.

112,000

The estimated number of civilian deaths.

16 months

The amount of time left before the U.S. has pledged to remove all troops from Iraq.

660,000

Members of Iraq's military and police.

The number of U.S. brigades left in the country.

'CONAN'

That's the name of Conan O'Brien's talk show that debuts Nov. 8 on TBS, the comedian announced Wednesday via YouTube video. We don't know what the other options were for the name of O'Brien's new show, but we did come up with some titles we would have suggested.

- » "Hot Coco"
- » "The This Isn't NBC Show"
- » "The Andy Richter Show with Conan O'Brien"
- » "The No Longer Legally Prohibited From Being on Television Show"
- » "Baywatch"

BRIGHT LIGHTS, BIG TVs

Who cares what's on the screen? For TV junkies, the viewing experience is all about the hardware

By Lenox Magee

FOR REDEYE

On one TV, Andrea Long is playing "Mario Kart." On a second TV, her boyfriend, Darian Irving, is taking a beating from the enemy in "Tekken." And on a third TV, Liz Lemon is juggling some huge egos on an episode of "30 Rock."

All this is happening in the bedroom of Irving's Hyde Park townhome, which, for the record, contains four TVs.

"I love to play video games and watch TV," said Irving, 28. "My girlfriend and I usually play in the same room, sometimes against each other, but I can't miss out on watching my favorite TV shows live."

Irving is so enamored with TVs that he sees the hardware as a work of art.

"The aesthetics of a wall-mounted flat-panel television is pleasing to the eyes even when it's not turned on," he said.

As the networks gear up for the fall season of programming, there is no better time of year to be a TV enthusiast. And if fresh seasons of "Modern Family" and "Glee" aren't enough to get TV lovers jacked up about their favorite pieces of technology, the industry now is pushing 3-D-capable TVs and 3-D programming that includes everything from live football games to Imax films.

The latest and greatest in TV technology are 3-D-capable sets, which entered the market six months ago and generated $55 million in just their first three months of sales, according to market research firm NPD Group.

3-D technology "will be a premium home entertainment experience in 2010," said Ross Rubin, NPD Group's executive director of industry analysis. He compared the technological evolution to previous TV advancements.

In the future, Rubin said trends indicate TVs will get thinner and more connected to content that is delivered from wireless and broadband sources. But for now, the focus is on 3-D.

"As more consumers adopt 3-D, the industry can help foster a 3-D ecosystem similar to that of HD," Rubin said.

Even the porn industry is getting in on the 3-D craze. A Hong Kong studio is in the process of producing "3-D Sex & Zen: Extreme Ecstasy," a soft-core flick that is being touted as the world's first Imax 3-D erotic film, Reuters reported in August.

Why is 3-D TV so special? Manufacturers tout a technology that approximates what you'd get in a movie theater—think "Avatar," but in your living room. Perhaps the greatest knock against 3-D TV—besides prices that easily can surpass $4,000 and limited programming from cable and satellite providers—is the need to purchase special, battery-operated glasses that control shutters in the lenses.

That doesn't appear to be hurting sales, NPD Group and local retailers said.

"3-D is very hot right now," said Bill Gerlach, audio/video manager for Glenview-based electronics company Abt. "An important thing to point out is that all 3-D sets are also the finest 2-D TVs that you can get your hands on."

Tom Simonds, 40, has turned his Winnetka home into a shrine to Sony TVs. He has 52-inchers in the family room and master bedroom and a 60-inch monster 3-D model in the basement that is outfitted with surround sound, a 3-D Blu-ray player, and Netflix and Comcast video on demand.

The ability to convert old movies into 3-D is Simonds' favorite feature of his prized TV.

"The 3-D programming is even better," he said.

Some TV enthusiasts are wary of the new generation of boob tubes.

Sabin West said he loves technology, "whether it's carbon fiber wheels on a bicycle or a 6mm-thick television," but the 35-year-old River North resident isn't buying a 3-D TV just yet. He plans to do his homework on the new models first.

"Is the technology a blast and fun to watch? Definitely," West said. "But I will wait until more Blu-ray movies, games and networks adopt the technology and by then, the way prices are going, they will practically give away a set."

Instead, he'll have to make do with his current setup, which still is pretty sweet. West wanted to mount two TVs side by side in the living room, but the drywall wouldn't support their weight. So he installed them back-to-back, with a 43-inch model in the living room and a 32-inch in the bedroom.

While she might never see a TV as a substitute for art, Long, 25, said the appreciation for TVs is contagious.

"When Darian and I first started dating, I just thought he was a TV and video game geek," she said. "It appears now, in some weird way, we're becoming one."

LENOX MAGEE IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

THE TUBE NECESSITY?

According to a study released last month by Pew Research Center, 42 percent of Americans say they consider the TV set to be a necessity. That's a 10 percent drop from 2009 and ranks TVs eighth on the list, behind cars (86 percent), cell phones (47 percent) and even microwaves (45 percent). In 2006, 64 percent of Americans responded that they considered owning a TV a necessity.

Extreme viewing

Like the actors on the screens, TVs come in all shapes and sizes. Abt, the Glenview-based electronics company, demonstrated that fact by sharing with RedEye the details of the biggest and smallest TVs on showroom floors. —L.M.

Bang & Olufsen BeoVision 7 LCD

Size: 55 inches

Price: $12,800

If you're dropping almost 13 grand, you want something impressive, right? This TV weighs in at 165 pounds and has a built-in Blu-ray player. If that's not cool enough, the TV has a sensor that adjusts the picture based on the light in the room. You'd need an hour to read all of the other special features on this thing.

FLO TV Touch-screen Personal Television

Size: 3.5 inches

Price: $149

Good things do come in small packages. Besides the fact that you can take this TV with you anywhere, it has a touchscreen display and five hours of viewing time on its battery. Comedy Central, MTV and CNN Mobile are among the channels available through the FLO TV network.

3-D's a small world

While TV manufacturers are pushing 3-D technology and networks are preparing more programming (a Discovery/Sony/IMAX partnership is among the projects in the works), only three channels are available now. Here is the programming currently available to 3-D capable TVs. Availability varies by cable and satellite provider. —L.M.

ESPN 3D

ESPN has 10 college football games on the schedule this year, and the network plans to feature at least 85 live sporting events during its first year.

DirecTV Cinema

DirecTV says the channel delivers movie features, documentaries and sports programming, though a look at the listings shows only a few movies in heavy rotation for now.

n3D

Shows about dinosaurs and African safaris are among the original programming for this DirecTV channel. There's even something for sports fans: The U.S. Open tennis tournament is on n3D this weekend.

'I won't do that again'

Barrino pledges to work on herself, career after suicide attempt

L.A. Times

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. August was supposed to be Fantasia Barrino's comeback month. For three years, the "American Idol" winner and Broadway star had been working on her third album and selecting tracks that spoke to how far she'd come in her troubled life.

To outsiders, everything seemed to be on target for a successful late-August launch of her album, "Back to Me." But behind the scenes, the 26-year-old singer, overloaded personally and professionally, said she felt like she wanted to "sleep forever." In a lengthy interview, Fantasia opened up about her Aug. 9 suicide attempt and also talked about her first halting and painful steps toward recovery.

"I always covered up everything so well," Fantasia said. "I'm always the bubbly life of the party. And for so long, I pushed and pushed and pushed. And, this day, I had no push in me."

Barrino explained why she returned to work so quickly.

"They wanted me to be in [group therapy] much longer, but I realized that the record company and everybody was depending on me, and I had to come back," she said. "I had an album coming out. They started saying they were going to push it back again, but they've already pushed it four times. So I decided to pull myself together."

She plans to tour in November and says she will continue to work on herself in therapy.

"I can make you this promise: I won't do that again," she said. "I gotta see my daughter walk across the stage and get her high school diploma, and she's got to go to college. I got to see that!"

Harry Brown

Available now

Michael Caine stars as the title character, an aging former Royal Marine. With his wife dying, Harry just wants to live a quiet retirement in what has become a rundown neighborhood. Then a gang of thugs murders his friend Leonard (David Bradley), and Harry's life changes. Yes, the film reminds you of some of those made by Charles Bronson and Clint Eastwood. Doesn't matter. Caine makes this one worth seeing.

Terrible Things

Terrible Things

The supergroup-of-sorts featuring former

Taking Back Sunday guitarist-singer Fred Mascherino, Coheed and Cambria vet Josh Eppard and Hot Rod Circuit's Andy Jackson accomplishes an impressive trick on its debut, "Terrible Things." Though it's a concept album about a string of arsons in Mascherino's hometown of Coatesville, Pa., the songs are remarkably upbeat and often rousing, especially the anthemic "Revolution," the radio-friendly "Conspiracy" and the TBS-accented title track. GLENN GAMBOA, NEWSDAY

House: Season 6

Available now

Hugh Laurie's damaged diagnostic whiz starts the season in a rehab/psych hospital, emerging a changed man. Or is he? The extras include some great stuff. Featurettes cover a psychiatric hospital location shoot, soundstage re-creation, Laurie's directing debut, plus four episode commentaries. DIANE WERTS, NEWSDAY

DVD AND BLU-RAY

Marmaduke

Available now

The comic strip dog must deal with a move to California. Director Tom Dey takes a serious approach to comedy by exploring how the massive Great Dane wants to fit in so much that he'll do anything. "Marmaduke" works because the charm of the comic strip is maintained through a story that never talks down to the audience. RICK BENTLEY, MCT

SONG

Forget You

Cee-Lo Green

This single shows how much fun pop music can be. Sure, it's not as much fun as the expletive-filled original, but the radio-friendly version is still a song-of-the-year contender, keeping the sweet soul backdrop and the sour grapes of a spurned lover. ("I guess he's an Xbox and I'm more Atari," he laments.) In less than four minutes, Green has you laughing at his digs, feeling his pain and wondering how the "Crazy" singer hasn't become a megastar yet.

The truth about Tillman

First the Army claims that Pat Tillman, an Arizona Cardinals defensive back who quit the NFL to enlist in the Army, was killed in action. Five weeks later, it's determined that Tillman actually was killed by friendly fire, hinting at an elaborate web of lies within the military and government that Tillman's amazing family refuses to take sitting down. Underneath it all is Tillman's specific wishes not to be hoisted up as a hero or to be treated differently than any other soldier.

The buzz: Director Amir Bar-Lev's last doc, "My Kid Could Paint That," also dealt with questions about reality and perpetuated lies. The story of Pat Tillman and the events following his death are so rich and complex that the film pretty much needs only to present the information clearly and honestly to land on something vital.

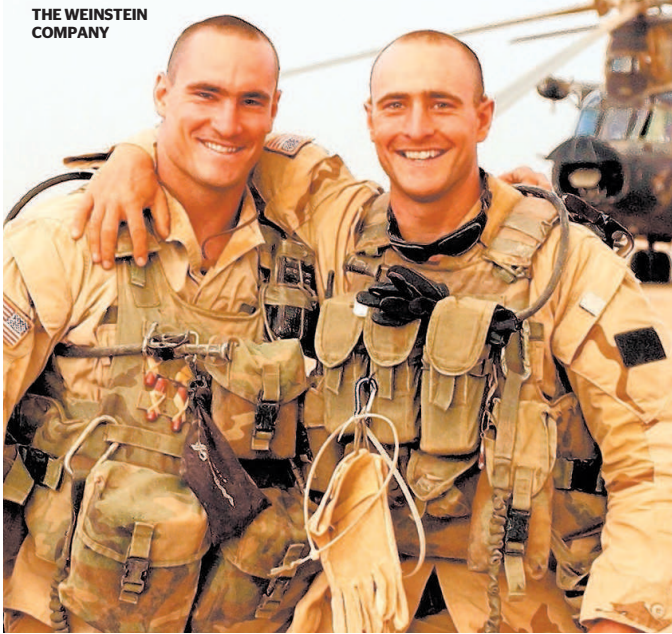

The verdict: An extraordinary real-life story, extraordinarily told. "The Tillman Story" doesn't seek to lionize Tillman or demonize the chain of command that executed a stunning cover-up in efforts to turn the fallen soldier into something of a poster-boy for American heroism and military participation. Rather, the information simply speaks for itself, as interviews with Tillman's family and archival footage reveal him as selfless and a model of dignity and honesty. Meanwhile, the film connects the dots between redacted documents and shameful congressional hearings in which high-ranking officials such as Donald Rumsfeld have little to say other than "I don't recall." A completely genuine act wound up being treated disingenuously, and Tillman's memory now symbolizes so much on both sides of the human spectrum. For better and for worse, "The Tillman Story" is America. MATT PAIS IS THE METROMIX MOVIES PRODUCER.

Eatt upp

By M. Kathleen Pratt

The latest spot from Rosebud Restaurants is a glorified diner, serving affordable, predictable breakfast fare in the morning and giant sandwiches, huge salads, robust burgers and a few steaks throughout the day and into the wee hours on weekends. There's also a carryout area up front, which offers baked goods, gelato and coffee to go. Like any good diner, Eatt aims to please a crowd with quick service and few surprises.

Options in this area of River North tend toward bar food and quick-serve chains, with not much in between. So Eatt, in its attempt to be all things to all at all hours of the day, makes a lot of sense as a concept. But is it just trying to capitalize on an unfilled niche, or can the food stand alone?

Server says: Try anything with salmon—you can't go wrong with smoked salmon Benedict ($10.99) or a classic lox platter ($12.99). The smoked whitefish salad ($10.99) is another favorite.

We say: Don't overlook the skillets ($9.99-$12.99), especially if you're hungry. Whether you go for corned beef hash, smoked polish sausage and caramelized onions, or smoked salmon with red onion and goat cheese, they're a good value.

Pass on: The baked goods. Unless you're in it for the current offer of free coffee with a bakery counter purchase, you're better off buying your muffins elsewhere.

We can't stop thinking about: The huge portions. We left at least a pound of "hash browns" (actually just potatoes) on our plate and still left full. And the turkey wrap we had for lunch one day was enough for two meals—half for lunch and half for dinner later at home.

Mushroom, bacon and blue cheese skillet
LENNY GILMORE PHOTO/METROMIX

Is it lunchtime yet? Lunch starts at 11 a.m., when the breakfast menu drops off save for a single omelet special. The cut-off is a little odd, since Eatt has the clanging, crowded, paper-placement feel of a place that would serve breakfast all day, but lunch hours bring good news for burger lovers. Rosebud restaurants are known for their burgers, and Eatt follows suit. The juicy patty, served on a pretzel bun slathered with roasted garlic aioli, is easily one of River North's best ($10.99). Of course, you could just go down to Rosebud Trattoria a few blocks away and get one for less.

Buzz factor: Fair. Mugs are huge, but they're too often allowed to run low.

Crowd surfing: Pancakes and breakfast skillets hold universal appeal, so it's anyone's game: singletons reading the newspaper, tourists poring over maps, Michigan Avenue shoppers and who knows who else. M. KATHLEEN PRATT IS THE METROMIX DINING PRODUCER. KPRATT@TRIBUNE.COM

Red Star rising

Ella Masar tore 6 muscles last year—now she leads the team in scoring

By Ryan Smith

FOR REDEYE

If her soccer career were a movie, it would be called “How Ella Got Her Groove Back.” After an injury-plagued 2009 and a coaching change for the Chicago Red Stars, forward Ella Masar this summer ended a scoring drought of a year and a half. Now the central Illinois native can’t seem to stop, scoring eight goals to lead the team. Masar, 24, spoke to RedEye about her resurgence as the team prepares for Sunday’s season finale.

RYAN SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

In 2009, you had a pretty bad injury that held you back. What was that like?

It was sort of a freak accident. I collided with the keeper in an odd way and I tore six muscles in my side. It was a sharp pain, and it felt like someone stabbed me with a knife. They thought at first that I shattered my pelvis because I couldn’t move. But, you know, injuries are part of our job. It’s good to rebound and come back from it.

Do you think there are misconceptions about women’s soccer?

I think people don’t really know much about our league [Women’s Professional Soccer], but there’s a lot of talent. The men go to Europe to play with the best of the best, but the women come here. We have women from Sweden, Brazil, Australia—all over the world—play in our league. I think if people came and watched us, they’d see some pretty great things they haven’t seen before.

What about all of this recent success you’ve had personally?

The first half of the year was rough. It took me like a year and a half to score one goal with the team. But I’ve definitely done better recently. It’s great.

Do you have a signature goal celebration?

No, it’s usually pretty spontaneous after you score. Sometimes in practice, we mess around and plan things, but you usually don’t think about it once you’re in the game. There was a game where I scored on a header in a 1-0 game, and I ran near the corner flag and slid down on my knees. I’d always wanted to do that.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redvechicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

YOU CAN'T SAY THAT

Pop culture is so filthy that we blacked out the naughty bits of this ██████████ story

Well, **██████████.

Doesn't it seem like you come home, turn on the tube and right away hear a long string of bleeping bleeps? And for a split-second you panic, thinking that "Maury" is on, 'cause that means your judgmental neighbors will hear you watching another "You are NOT the father" episode, and maybe they won't invite you to play bags in the courtyard on Sunday.

Rest assured, Maury Povich hasn't moved to prime time. But judging by what's hot in America right now, you could be confused.

First, there are the endless promos for "██████████ My Dad Says," the taken-from-Twitter sitcom starring William Shatner, debuting Sept. 23. And, uh, have you checked the Internet lately? The reigning viral video is a song called "██████████ You!" by Gnarl Barkley dude Cee-Lo Green. Its profane chorus, set to an upbeat melody, has racked up more than 4 million views. And don't even get us started on "Jersey Shore."

Well, ██████████. If that's what the country wants, so be it. Let's take a look at the updated Pop Culture Potty Mouth Meter. ARIEL ALEXOVICH, REDEYE

‘██████████’

Meredith Brooks song

We get it—it's an anthem of womanhood. Next time, pick a word that's not already approved for network TV.

‘██████████ My Dad Says’

CBS TV show

Old men always swear. Nothing new here.

‘Hollaback Girl’

Gwen Stefani song

This, ahem, demure mom of two teaches her tween and teen fans that this ██████████ is bananas, b-a-n-a-n-a-s. At least there's a spelling lesson involved.

‘I'm an ██████████’

Denis Leary (right) song

The actor mocks the disabled and tosses Styrofoam on the ground in a stand-up act. What an **██████████.

MTV Movie Awards

Every acceptance speech

"I've never heard the word '██████████' used so many times in one evening," said "New Moon" actor Peter Facinelli (left), who used the word nine more times in his speech.

‘██████████ You!’

Cee-Lo Green

The trifecta of profanity: He says ██████████, ██████████ and ██████████! And, yep, you can get a profane T-shirt at Cee-Lo's website.

Two tatted lovebirds

Kat Von D is using the "L"-word. The "LA Ink" star showed up to her gallery opening in West Hollywood on Thursday with Jesse James, formerly known as Mr. Sandra Bullock, according to people.com. "Jesse is only my ninth boyfriend. I don't hang out with anybody unless I am in love," she said.

Broadway Brendan

Brendan Fraser (right) is making the leap to the stage. The star of films such as "Fury Vengeance," "Encino Man" and the "Mummy" series will make his Broadway debut Nov. 2 in "Elling," Reuters reports. The play is a comedy based on popular Norwegian novels about a pair of mismatched roommates.

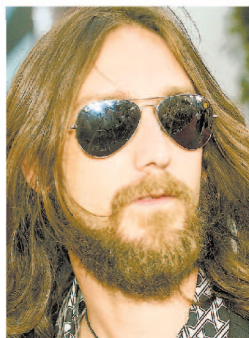

Chefs sour on Bourdain

Chef and critic Anthony Bourdain, host of the Travel Channel's "No Reservations," has been tough on the Food Network, which has created some tension with the talent. "Rachael Ray sent me a fruit basket. And I had an uncomfortable meeting with Sandra Lee, where she pretty much had me for breakfast," Bourdain told The Hollywood Reporter. "It's not like we socialize together. They work their side of the street, I work mine."
